COMMERCE.

The following letter contains an interesting view of the state of commerce in England, at the time it was written; since which, so far from having improved, it has become less and less favorable. This is a subject which begins to interest not our Merchants only, but our Farmers and Planters too, in a manner which must have the effect of rousing their attention to it. Flour, the staple of the middle states, brings only about half the price it did twelve months ago; cotton, not much better, and every other article of commerce declining. It is natural to seek for all information which may throw light on this state of trade, and on the path which lies before us. We shall collect for the information of our readers whatever may serve this purpose.

A letter from a merchant in England, to another in New-York.

Liverpool, Jan. 23d, 1819.

The present important state of trade, we trust, will be deemed of sufficient interest for adhering to the usual custom, at the commencement of the year, of addressing you in a printed form, and submitting to your consideration an abstract of the commercial intercourse between our respective countries during the last year, together with some remarks on its present situation, and prospective probable character.

The import of ashes into this port has been, from the Showing a decrease in our imports the last year, of 5,447 barrels. The imports into other parts of Great Britain, are 1,255 barrels more than in 1817; the decrease of imports, therefore, is 3,992 barrels. The stock of American pot ashes in Liverpool, on the 1st inst. were 6000 barrels, viz: 3,700 Montreal, and 2,300 U. States. The stock of pearl 1600 barrels, being 1000 bbls. less of each description, and both rate 3s. to 3s. per cwt. lower than at the same period last year.

Prices rule 1s. to 2s. per cent. lower.

The annexed tables shew the imports of cotton into Great Britain in the last year to have been 668,799 bags, being an increase on the imports of 1817 of 186,275 bags; the consumption has been 422,700 more than in 1817; the exports 59,500; the existing stocks 331,800, or 186,430 more than at the same period last year.

To this important and principal branch of your commerce, too great consideration cannot be paid, nor endeavors used, to elucidate its present and to form a correct opinion as to its probable future situation. These may now be obvious; yet, a clear consideration of this subject may lead us more distinctly to view the important changes occurring in this trade, which appear to be of too marked a character to be slightly noticed.

It may be well, therefore, to consider the difficulty of forming a proper estimate of the rate at which cotton and rice can be shipped from the United States, with safety to the shipper, or with a chance of profit; for the markets of their consumption now no longer depend, as in recent years, on the extent of the U. States' crops, but the trade having been driven, in a great measure, by political causes, to other success of supply, cannot easily be recalled from the new channels into which it has been diverted. The East Indies particularly, and the Brazils, now compete with the United States in affording supplies of these most important articles of export, sufficient to induce the greatest caution in making shipments, and to point out the hazard in dealing in them, except at moderate prices.

Our anticipation of these circumstances will be shewn by a comparison of our advices with the result exhibited in the annexed tables; and the losses then expected, which have accrued to nearly every shipper of cotton. In our respects of Dec. 1817, while the imports of that year had exceeded the consumption, it was stated—"that the high prices which for several years preceding had been, and at that period were, given for cotton, acting as an extraordinary and continued stimulus to its culture, in every portion of the globe where it could be raised, very large supplies might naturally be expected from all quarters; particularly from the East Indies, where the land being rich, the labor remarkably cheap, it could in all probability be offered at a cheaper rate than from any other country; and while these cottons had always interfered with the inferior descriptions of Upland, they would, from the great encouragement given, doubtless be gradually improved in quality, as well as excessively increased in quantity."

The continued adaptation, by the spinners, of their machinery to the East India cottons, which have met, in the last year, an increased consumption of 26,000 bags, while that of American has decreased 12,000—the great increase of imports from that quarter, and general excess over the consumption, have proved the correctness of these anticipations. The cause which has produced such an excess of the imports from the crops of 1817, over the consumption, still existing, little doubt can be entertained, from the continued encouragement given to the culture of this article, but that the quantity raised will be more than adequate to the consumption, in a far greater ratio than it has hitherto been; and although the means of purchasing in India are likely to become more circumscribed, whereby a temporary diminution of export from that quarter may occur, yet these supplies, of themselves so much more useful, must be directed to Europe, and in this country they meet an existing stock already adequate to three quarters of a year's demand. The prospects for this article are therefore extremely unfavorable, and, although the consumption is greater than has been hitherto known, being now 9000 bags weekly, except at prices sufficiently low to induce the spinners to abandon in a great measure the use of East India cotton, must be hazardous.

The import of American rice into this country has decreased, in consequence of more than usual having been directed to the continent. The import into Liverpool, including Brazil and East India, in the last year, has been 5,340 tons, against 6390 in 1817; giving an increase of import, principally of East India, 10,200 tons. The consumption of rice in this country falls principally on East India in consequence of being admitted free of duty; while a duty is imposed on that of other countries of—per cwt. The future currency of this article, during the present general abundance and cheapness of grain, must be very precarious, depending as it does on the events of the continent, and the uncertain extent of future supplies from India.

The import of foreign wheat into the kingdom has been greater than in any former year. Of our present stock of 90,000 bbls. of American flour, three fourths are sour. The imports last year into this port have been 350,000 barrels, while in 1817 they were 540,000. From the inconvenience caused by the fluctuations in prices, from the sudden inundations of foreign grain, little doubt is entertained but our present corn laws will undergo an early revision, and the maximum be fitted at a higher rate, or a duty imposed on imports.

The prices of flaxseed, at all times very precarious, depend almost entirely on the extent of supplies from the United States, and the wants of Ireland. Flax is now at a price which pays the farmer well; a good demand of sowing is consequently looked for in the spring. The quantity exclusive of home saved seed, usually sown in Ireland, is 52,000 hds; in 1817 there were sown 32,178; and in 1818, 47,605. The season last year was fine, and rather more home seed saved than in 1817; their imports were 50,426 hds; of which 32,330 were American; 6,472 Russia; 11,119 Dutch, and 826 British; of which were branded sound 49,717

Sown in Ireland, in 1818	55,895
Leaving their stock, 5th July 1818	47,607

Of which probably 5 or 6000 will remain over until the next season, fit for sowing.

Our imports of tar have been 67,142 barrels, against 17,856 in 1818; but the consumption has been very great, so that our present stock is but 25,000 bbls. against 17,000 at the close of 1817. The general import into other parts of Great Britain has been by no means commensurate with ours, being little more than 100,000.

The imports of turpentine have greatly increased, being 49,750 bbls. and casks to this port, against 34,000 in 1817. The remaining general imports have been 61,642 casks, against 37,000 in 1817. The stocks are also greater, being here 12,000 bbls. against 5000 at the same period last year.

Contrary to all former calculations, and information from every quarter of the U. States, respecting the quantity of tobacco that would be exported in 1818, they have been remarkably great. It has now gained general credit, that, in the year ending on the 1st October last, the exports have been 80 to 83,000 hds.

Besides loading at that date in Virginia, for London and this port	11,000
Calculated to remain there afterwards, and on the Roanoke	7,000

	106,300

To meet the consumption of Europe, which may be fairly estimated at 68 to 70,000 hds. annually, of United States' tobacco.

Instead, therefore, of the exports of 1818, being, according to the general expectation, about the same as in 1817, when they were only 63,000 hds, to 1st October, of which 57,000 came to Europe, and were inadequate to the consumption by 10 to 13,000 hds. a material surplus is given; and admitting the crops of Virginia, Maryland and Georgia, to have failed by 12,000 hds. or more, as has been estimated, the supplies would still be more than sufficient; but it is now believed that the excess of the western crops will be fully adequate to make up their deficiency. The public opinion in Europe, which was founded on the best information that could be procured, is therefore completely changed.

An unusual proportion of the above exports have been directed to this country, where an immense accumulation of stock, amounting to 30,000 hds. now exists. Our market consequently depends, notwithstanding the trade has very limited stocks, on an export demand, which it is the more reasonable to expect, since no continental orders were executed in autumn. But it has not yet appeared; while the prices of tobacco on the continent continue below ours, and the season previous to new supplies is becoming more and more curtailed; an important change must not only occur in their markets, but great and unprecedented must our exports soon become, to prevent a further depression, or cause a favorable change.

With so heavy an export in 1818, from the United States, although the stocks are not easily ascertained, it is sufficient to account for such a deficiency on the continent as we have hitherto been led to imagine.

The market, therefore, has an unpromising appearance; the heavy stocks of produce in this country, and losses on nearly all imports have caused a general and increasing pressure on trade, affecting, of course, all its branches; and the large stocks of tobacco held by the middle men, though of itself advantageous, prevent any temporary benefit which might be afforded by speculation; the scarcity of money also, on the continent, operates materially on that considerable export, which alone can afford a permanent improvement.

With this unexpected change of circumstances, and to such changes, as they rise, must every mercantile opinion be adapted, and by considerations which arise from them, under the peculiarly depressed state of commerce, the market has been borne down to its present situation; from whence it is obvious that it cannot be extricated, but by adventitious causes.

In adverting to the heavy losses which have occurred during the last two years to nearly every shipper of the produce of the United States, and investigating the causes of so much disappointment, cannot but appear evident, that, without a complete change in the system of its trade, a different result of future operations cannot be expected.

The extravagant price of produce, arising from the great facility with which money has hitherto been raised in the United States, has precluded all chance of profit to the exporter; and until commercial operation depend more on capital than in the facility of credit, the prices of produce are not likely to bear a relative proportion to those of the markets of its consumption, nor to be governed otherwise than by that speculative spirit which induces the purchase of produce, not with a view to its ultimate destination, but to resale; the foreign market becoming merely the dernier resort from the inability of holders to realize any further profits at home.

The result has been materially prompted by the great competition of the foreign commission merchants for the trade of the United States, who force it by joining in shipments and by heavy advances, which, whilst it has the injurious effect of aiding speculation of enhancing the cost of produce, has the still greater of reducing its value abroad, by the consequent necessity of urging sales.

The losses in the American, have been fully equalled in the trade with the East Indies and Brazil. For that tendency to enter into hazardous and speculative operations, which arose during a long period of war, when occasionally large profits were realized, as much by chance as by regular calculation, has by no means subsided since the peace. The general competition in trade to which this has given rise, has been productive of those very injurious effects which are now so sensibly felt by the general and increasing pressure on trade; which, now, as on all similar occasions, has a depreciating effect on even those branches of commerce which are not apparently connected with the others that have caused it. And while, during a general state of peace, commerce should naturally be adapted to it, in forming our calculations we must not lose sight of these new sources from which increasing supplies of produce are derived, which formerly were to be obtained only from distinct and certain quarters; especially in the principal articles of produce of the United States. The cultivation of tobacco in Europe, and in the western portion of the United States, has completely changed the former character of its trade; whilst in Rice and Cotton the East Indies and Brazil present a formidable competition; and Grain and Flour, in the event of deficiency in our own crops; incalculable supplies, from the neighboring states of Europe, can immediately be derived. A profitable trade with the United States, therefore, can only be expected, when she meets this competition by the proportionate value of her produce.—Com. Advertiser.

Latest From Europe.

LONDON, MARCH 12.

The claims of the English merchants on the court of Russia for the value of 140 vessels and cargoes under neutral flags, detained by the government at Petersburg in the year 1810, are likely at length to be adjusted; it will be recollected that a deputation at the head of which was Mr. Alderman Bowyer, was sent from London to the Russian capital, to seek compensation from the Emperor for losses sustained by British subjects. As the Emperor Alexander was at Aix la Chapelle at the time of the arrival of the deputation, the memorial was forwarded to our minister, and from him to the hands of the emperor. An answer to it has now been received, and we are informed that it is of a satisfactory nature. The amount is very large, and the whole 140 vessels had valuable cargoes on board, chiefly in colonial produce.

Letters have been received to the 23d ult. from Gibraltar, by which it appears that the plague on the coast of Africa, instead of diminishing with the cold weather, was increasing to an alarming extent. The only information with regard to the ravages committed by it, was brought to the British fortress by the vessel appointed by the governor to sail at stated periods, as no private trading ships were allowed to have any communication with the Barbary coast. According to the latest advices, one or two hundred persons died daily of the disease.

PARIS, MARCH 11.

Yesterday there was a grand council, which commenced, at one, and continued until half past 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

The definitive organization of the national guards is referred to the King's ministers, and will soon be discussed in council.

Yesterday the Memoirs of Count Las Casas were seized at the bookseller's L'Huillier.

It is not ascertained when the projects of law concerning the press, the journals, and the trial by jury, will be presented to the chamber—but it appears certain, notwithstanding what has been said in one of the papers, that they will not be submitted to the chamber during the present week.

It is asserted, that in compliance with the order of the king, the minister of the interior has given directions to different statuary, to execute marble statues of Pascal, Montaigne, Bossuet, Corneille, Racine, La Fontaine, and Montesquieu, which are to be placed in the cities which gave birth to these great men.

CONSTANTINOPLE, FEB. 4.

The emperor of Russia has written a very friendly autograph letter to the sultan, recommending to the Porte the amicable arrangement of the still disputed points arising from the treaty of Bucharest. It is hoped, with the more reason, that this unusual step will have a favorable influence on the negotiations of Baron Stroganoff, as the two emperors both desire the maintenance of peace, and a part of the late difference is really adjusted.

The celebrated traveller, known by the name of Ali Bey, who was on a pilgrimage to Mecca, with the caravan, died not far from Damascus. The Pacha, by virtue of his title to inherit the effects of all pilgrims who died on the road, has taken possession of all his property, including the valuable instruments and manuscripts.

STOCKHOLM, FEB. 23.

Winter, crowned with snow, has been joyfully welcomed in the mining countries as an old friend. The roads are now covered with hundreds of vehicles conveying ore and coals.

FRANKFORT, FEB. 26.

They talk of several bloody scenes, which it is affirmed, have taken place on the frontiers of Prussian Saxony. Among others, it is stated, that a custom-house officer, in a town in a Thuringe, was murdered in his bed the first night after he had arrived there.

ROME, FEB. 27.

There have set out from hence, for the Island of St. Helena, the following four individuals:—Dr. Vitelli, a physician of great talents, a native of Corsica (a priest); Professor Antonmarchi, a surgeon, hitherto attached to the University of Pisa; the Abbe Bonavista, a priest of a native of Corsica, in the employ of the princess Borghese, who is appointed apostolic missionary by the Propaganda Fide, and who is to be employed as Almoher to the catholic colony of Saint Helena; and lastly, a cook, destined for the household service of Bonaparte.

These individuals, furnished with passports from the English Ministry, are to proceed to Ostend. They are to enter into an engagement not to quit St. Helena so long as Bonaparte lives, unless sent away by the English government. The sending of the priest is at the particular instance of Cardinal Fesch, who addressed a request to that effect, supported by the recommendation of the Holy Father to the Earl Bathurst.

EASTPORT, APRIL 10.

By the Leod, Woodward, arrived at this port, yesterday, from Trinidad, received from a very intelligent gentleman, at that place, and who very recently returned from the theatre of war, the following brief abstract of the latest intelligence from Venezuela.

Port-Spain, March 15.

Late dispatches received at Augustura, from Gen. Paez, dated the 15th ult. announced the retreat of the Spanish army over the Aruca. Morillo, after an ineffectual attempt to bring Paez to a general action, was rapidly retracing his steps towards the Apure. His object is to regain the cultivated country, finding it impossible to draw supplies from the plains, in which he was harassed continually by 2500 cavalry. The detachments he had sent out in quest of subsistence had been uniformly cut off by Paez's cavalry, and from the time of crossing the Aruca till that of his retreating it, and marching as far as Concepcion, Morillo had lost 1200 men and a field piece. He had circulated (in writing) a boastful proclamation to Valerios, or inhabitants of the plains, dated the 5th, to which Paez had replied by a keenly satirical address (by way of comment) on the 15th February.

The artillery and infantry, (2000) left on the island before Urbana, in the Orinoco, were proceeding by forced marches to re-unite themselves with Paez. They will be reinforced by 420 English and Irish soldiers, it having been Bolivar's intention to await there the arrival of two thousand English, daily expected &c. Gen. Bolivar set out from Augustura, on the 27th ult. on his return to the army.

Col. Hursler's regiment and the remainder of col. English's expedition, are looked for daily. They will probably be associated with the 600 at Margarita, whither Gens. Urdumeta and Valdez, Col. Nedham, the adjutant general of that division, have gone with about 60 English sailors—who will assist in making gun boats or other vessels. Associated with 500 Margaritanes, &c. they will make a descent upon the coast at—, and form a junction with the division collected in the provinces of Barcelona and Cumana, to be commanded by Gen. Marinos, Sarozas, Monagza, and perhaps Bermendez' forces, will constitute this army. Gen. Monagza was at the point of death from an attack of fever. News of decisive operations may be looked for from day to day. Should these forces not complete the object of independence, though the supposition is improbable, the troops arrive from England will unquestionably expel the remainder of Morillo's corps from Venezuela. This will be a work of the greater facility, as Morillo has suffered greatly.—Paez writes that the prisoners taken were more like skeletons than living men. Add to this, he, Morillo, has above 400 miles of plains to traverse, exposed continually to the enemy's cavalry, his own being annihilated, and not a head of cattle in his camp.

The congress was deliberating on various regulations, and on a fundamental law or constitution, to be proposed to the people for their approbation. This is the substance of the latest news. More important events will soon challenge more regard than this hasty epitome.

We also received by the above vessel Trinidad papers to the 15th ult. but they contain nothing of importance.

NEW YORK, APRIL 24.

We learn from Capt. Whitmarsh, of the schooner Telegraph, from Curacao, that a Dutch government schooner had been dispatched to Lagaira to ascertain the state of that place. She returned to Curacao the 30th March with intelligence that the port was in a rigorous state of blockade by the squadrons of Brion and Taylor, and that the royalists had laid an embargo on all vessels in port.

Extract of a letter from St. Croix, April 4th, 1819.

General Morillo is retreating with the remainder of his army, after having been defeated near Apure, by the patriot army, under the command of Gen. Paez. It is hoped that the remainder of Morillo's army will be completely destroyed before they cross the river. It is also fully hoped, that if Morillo and his army are destroyed in the present campaign, the part of the province of Venezuela under the Spanish control, will tamely yield to the patriots, whence the independence of the republic of Venezuela, will be firmly established. The congress of Venezuela has been reinstalled, and Gen. Bolivar is president ad interim. The result of Brion's attack on the royal squadron, which were laying in the bay of Eumana, has not been heard of. In short the successes of the patriots are going on with great rapidity, aided by worthy foreigners who have come to immortalize their name in support of the patriot cause. Already 3,000 men have arrived a Guayana from England. There is a rumor going on here, that Lima has been taken by the patriots, and that 2000 Spanish soldiers have been captured at sea by the Buenos Ayrean squadron.

Extract of a letter received at Philadelphia, dated St. Thomas, March 30.

By a vessel just arrived from Curacao, news had been received by a vessel arrived there from Carthagena, that the governor of Panama had written to the governor of Carthagena, for all the forces he could muster for his succour, as he dreaded an instant attack from the independent army, which after having taken Lima, was then advancing rapidly to the northward, no doubt to attack his post. It is also stated, that of the fleet which some time ago had sailed from Spain for Peru, the crew of one vessel had mutinied, and carried her into Valparaiso, giving information that the rest of the squadron were in a similar state. On receiving these accounts the government of Valparaiso immediately despatched the same vessel, together with the rest of the squadron then in port, to intercept them, which they accordingly effected; and after exchanging a few shot, the whole Spanish fleet joined them. They immediately proceeded to Callao, under the Spanish flag, forwarded the dispatches taken on board the squadron, to the Viceroy, and debarked the whole of their forces, which were received with every demonstration of joy. They immediately set out for Lima, and took peaceful possession of that city, the government supposing them to be friends.

WASHINGTON, APRIL 26.

The capture of Lima, the Metropolis of Peru, and the intended movement from thence, on the Pacific coast, towards the Panama, or famous isthmus of Darien, are operations which if conducted with common prudence by the patriots will be crowned with complete success. The occasional reverses of the patriots on the Venezuelan coast of the Atlantic, are thus amply counterbalanced by their victorious career on the Pacific.—Wash. City Gaz.

Capt. Whitmarsh, in 20 days from Curacao, arrived at New York, on the 22d April, informs that about an hour before he sailed, information was received by a Dutch government schooner, that Lagaira was blockaded by a squadron under Admiral Brion's flag; an embargo was laid on all vessels at that place and Porto Cavello in consequence of the appearance on the coast of the Patriot squadron. It was also reported that the royalists had recently been several times defeated on the Main.—Ib.

A Col. Eyre has raised in Galway, Ireland, two regiments of 1200 men each, for service in New Grenada, South America.—Ib.

Amongst the late batch of peers, recently made in France, we find no less than six of Napoleon's old marshals, namely: the Duke of Albufera—Duke of Cornegiana—Duke of Dantzic—Prince of Eckmühl—Count Jourdan—Duke of Treviso. Also, Admirals Truguet, Verhuel, and Messrs. Chapal, Lacépède, Latour Maubourg, Portalis, Rapp, &c. &c.—Phil. Gaz.

WASHINGTON, APRIL 27.

We perceive, with much satisfaction, by the Price Current in Day and Turner's "New York Shipping and Commercial List, that the premium on Spanish Dollars is down to 43 per centum. Stock of the bank of the United States is quoted, on the 23d instant, in New York, at 102½ to 103. The Price Current of Stocks, &c. is a barometer which, at the present moment, is regarded with deep interest by those who intuitively dread the reflux of a baseless paper currency.—Nat. Intel.

PROVIDENCE, (R. I.) APRIL 17.

The ship Lion, Townsend, arrived here from Canton, has brought to this country three natives of Madison's Island, in the South Sea, which, it will be recollected, was taken possession of by Com. Porter, in the frigate Essex, in November, 1813, for the United States. Two of them are young men, upwards of 20 years old probably, and the other a lad of about 12. They are copper-colored, and tattooed according to their custom, by puncturing the skin and introducing a dark liquid, which has a singular appearance. They appear to be in offensive youths, and, as they are American citizens, having been adopted into the great American family, we trust they will be treated with kindness and hospitality.—Patriot.

FRANCE.

A Royal decree of France, dated March 5, as will be seen in another part of to-day's Gazette, has appointed 59 new members to the chamber of peers. Many of them were distinguished in the revolution, and known to be warm adherents of Bonaparte. This is a stroke of policy, no doubt, on the part of Louis to avert some threatened political calamity. We are astonished that the emperor's friends should accept: for, however much we despise the Bourbon dynasty, we should like to see it put down, and another revolution produced, without the intervention of intrigue. Talleyrand, under every change, is always in the cabinet—always prince of Benevento; and it has been hoped that he was the only illustrious personage, in the kingdom, capable of distinguished corruption. But bad examples, set by the great, seem to be contagious. This we find in the recent annals of our own country.

A dissolution of the chamber of Deputies was much talked of. The ministry, as late as the 12th of March, found much opposition in that department of the legislature. The government party had drawn up a project of a law to increase the number of Deputies, and by this means leave a majority in the royal cause. Whether success will attend the scheme is quite uncertain. It is supposed the new peerage will consult the interest of the nation. This they may do for a time, in order to make their power more certain: but they cannot forget that they were once Republicans under the auspices of the great, but unfortunate Napoleon; and the political feelings of veteran men cannot be entirely changed—although they appear to have been so far conquered as to induce an acceptance of kingly favor.

ENGLAND.

The markets in England continue to be overstocked with American and other produce. The prices of tobacco, cotton and rice were much reduced on the 18th of March. Our trade with that nation offers very little encouragement to commercial enterprise. Several houses in London and Liverpool, recently of high credit, have stopped payment. The eminent establishment of J. Barraud & Co. of the former place, failed for 200,000 pounds. Other European markets are in the same state of depression.

If our raw materials will not command an adequate price the other side of the Atlantic, America must of necessity become a manufacturing nation. Under a proper patronage of the government, we have no doubt this would speedily be the case. The vast productions of the earth require it. Why the necessity of exporting our produce, if the essentials and luxuries of life can be furnished at home?

The time has been when the fostering hand of government was extended to domestic manufactures. Prosperity, then, gladdened every portion of the union. The factories in Kentucky—the factories in our own town and neighborhood presented a delightful scene of industrious bustle. They are now still. They are the decayed and decaying monuments of the genius and enterprise of former years; all for the want of that encouragement due from our political rulers. This is a favorable era to revive them. The monied pressure and commercial dulness that every where exist, should arouse the patriotic feelings of every class of citizens; and prompt them to manly exertions on this interesting subject. There is but little wanted for the purpose. We have the raw materials—we have the mechanics—and machinery of every description is accessible. It is necessary only for a few influential capitalists to commence the work—the poorer class will aid—and public opinion, and public interest, will coerce governmental sanction.

SOUTH AMERICA.

The different articles under the South American head, in our paper of to-day, furnish the best comment on the success of the patriots. The peaceable possession of Lima, the defeat and expulsion of the savage Morillo, and the different triumphs on the Main, argue well for the speedy independence of our southern brethren. Were Mexico now conquered, but little would remain to be done. The independents have characterized themselves for perseverance. A great cause, well supported, never fails. The old maxim—"Fortis est fidelis et difficilis"—"Nothing is difficult to the brave and faithful," happily applies to the patriots. Hearts overflowing with the holy principles of liberty and freedom do not esteem operations difficult, which others would, who are less interested. Emancipation from the galling yoke of Spanish tyranny is the great object to which they ultimately look. That is the haven for which they have embarked—it is there they will arrive in spite of shoals and quicksands.

Yrujo is carried into Ferdinand's ministry. He appears to be making considerable preparations for the summer and fall, in obtaining transports and money. Before he carries his projects into execution, however, the patriots will have too firm a hold to be resisted. Indeed we expect the preparations are more formidable on paper than they are in reality.

THE NEXT GOVERNOR.

It is time that the people were turning their attention to the subject of their next chief magistrate. Old etiquette would pronounce this too early a period to say any thing about it. The mass of the electors, say some, should not bestow a single thought, until next session of the Legislature convenes—and a grand caucus is held for the purpose of nominating and cramping down their throats, such a person as their wisdom may select. Something of this kind was attempted last winter: but no decisive step was taken. Two gentlemen, not necessary to be named, did, through the long vista of twenty months, take a peep at the gubernatorial chair, and chair of the senate. We hope, however, that was the last time either of the personages will feast their eyes. There is better stuff, for governor and lieutenant governor, in Kentucky at this time.

The importance of mature reflection, concerning suitable persons to fill both these high offices, will be at once seen. We require a distinguished man for governor, to redeem the executive character of the state. We should have an excellent lieutenant governor, lest death should again deprive us of the more experienced officer. The political eye-teeth, to use a trite saying, of the state ought to be cut, after having been once politically cheated. Who, five years ago, would have dreamed of living to see a federalist at the head of the state? A hint that such an event would ever occur, would have insulted nine-tenths of the people of Kentucky. Yet, strange to tell—we are under the yoke of merciless tyranny.

Let vigilance in our future choice be the watch-word. It is not necessary to wait for the Frankfort caucus. Our suffrages are not to be legislated away, either in or out of the Hall. If we can find a person for governor who has performed illustrious deeds; the better part of whose life has been spent in the service of an endeared country; whose integrity is above suspicion—if the mind's eye can rivet itself upon such a man, the honest part of the community will support him.

It is but little more than a year now until the election of governor. Neighborhoods, towns and counties ought to converse among themselves relative to a suitable person for the chief magistracy. If any one is fixed upon, in this way, no doubt he would serve, be his engagements what they might.

SEMINOLE WAR.

Col. RICHARD M. JOHNSON's speech on this subject has been re-printed in England, as the best in defence of the operations of Gen. Jackson in Florida.

If we may judge from the prints in London and Liverpool, the result of the discussion in the house of representatives, approving Jackson's conduct, has produced immense dissatisfaction throughout the whole British empire. Arbutnot and Ambrister are claimed by the writers as British subjects. Parliament stands pledged to take up the matter.

Neither the report of the senate, the threats of Gen. Jackson, the strictures, nor Gen. Laocoe's reply—had reached England at the last date.

POLITICAL MISFORTUNE.

The notorious and troublesome JOHN RANBORN of Roanoke, is again elected to congress from the state of Virginia.

THE FRANKFORT MEETING.

Yesterday was the day, appointed by the hand-bill notice, for a meeting of the people of Franklin to discuss the distressed situation of the country—and to recommend alleviating measures. We do not know distinctly the means they may have recommended—and shall, for this week, defer any remarks. An effort, we have no doubt, will be made, to convene the legislature—to cause the banks to suspend specie payments—and to advise the passage of a law extending the time of reprieve.

YELLOW STONE EXPEDITION.

The gentlemen who accompany this expedition are distinguished for military and general science. The officer, of which we spoke some time since, Gen. T. S. JESSUP, passed through Lexington last week on his way to St. Louis. Maj. LONO, of the engineer department, we know possesses the most exalted merit; and our information gives to his companions all the necessary attributes for their business. Gen. Jessup will direct the military operations of the Missouri. This able selection of men to explore the vast western regions, is in accordance with other distinguished acts of Mr. CALHOUN's administration.

From the London Statesman.

On America's rising Greatness.—By looking over the Newspapers of the three great sea ports of America, any man, without being a statesman, may discover the gigantic growth of this infant state in the new world; but if the politician examines its treaties with the different powers it is connected with, he cannot but discover its wise and firm policy.—Nothing can shake it in any one respect. Even with Great Britain it has so far gained its point with respect to the great article of the fisheries, that a middle-aged man may live to see the time when the Americans will enquire of us what business we have to fish on their shores and beds. In fact, our state is attenuating by luxury and extravagance, their's is acquiring additional strength by temperance and economy.

Sir W. Jones ('tis thought in the muse recall'd) says—

Beyond the vast Atlantic deep
A dome by viewless Genii shall be reared;
The walls of Adamant, compact and steep,
The portals with sky-tintured gems embell'd.

There, on a lofty throne, shall Virtue stand;
To her the youth of Delaware shall kneel,
And when her smiles rain plenty o'er the land,
Bow, TYRANTS, bow beneath the avenging steel.

MASSACHUSETTS ELECTION.

Governor Brooks, the federal candidate, is re-elected by a majority of about 5000 votes over Mr. Crowninshield, the republican candidate, being about 2500 less majority than he obtained at the last preceding election.

MARSHAL GROUCHY.

A pamphlet in the French language has been issued by Marshal Grouchy, containing observations on Gen. Gourgaud's narrative of the campaign of 1815, and a refutation of assertions of other writers in relation to the battle of Waterloo.

An abstract of this pamphlet has been prepared for the Analytic Magazine—and the following are the outlines of the marshal's case.

The Prussians began their retreat after the battle of Ligny, at ten o'clock in the night of the 16th June. Marshal Grouchy did not receive his orders to pursue them, until noon the next day, at Fleurus; the several corps of his army could not be collected and put in motion, until 3, P. M. seventeen hours after the enemy had left Ligny.

From the official reports, the Prussians retreated with 95,000 men—Grouchy's force was 32,000.

Napoleon was ignorant of the direction of the Prussian columns: he left it to Grouchy to ascertain their route, ordering him to complete their defeat so soon as he should reach them; and to communicate with him, (Napoleon) who was then advancing to attack the British army.

Grouchy moved to Grenoble; the last of his corps (Gerard's) arriving there at ten o'clock on the night of the 17th, a distance of about four leagues from Fleurus. The rain fell in torrents;—his cavalry detached beyond the town, fell in with the extreme rear of a Prussian guard of cavalry—was ordered to pursue them vigorously, and not to lose sight of them.

Grouchy reported to Napoleon from Gembloux, which place he left at daylight on the 18th, pursuing the route of the enemy through Saravallian towards Wavres; he reported to Napoleon again from Saravallian; after driving a strong Prussian guard, he took post in that part of the town of Wavres, which lies on the left bank of the river Dyle, arriving there at about 2 o'clock, P. M. his troops not having halted since they left Gembloux.

During the affair at Wavres, he heard a canonade on his left—supposed it was Napoleon engaged with the British— but considered it his duty to operate on the Prussian army, which he believed concentrated before him, to prevent their making a movement towards Waterloo. Vandamme's corps, under G's orders, was actively engaged during the rest of the day in attempting to force the passage of the Dyle, & Gerard's, though with less energy was making a similar attempt at Bielege, below; the enemy crowned the opposite heights, occupied the village of Bielege, and mill of that name, and extended towards Limette, his position was strong, and the nature of the ground rendered it difficult to estimate his numbers. Grouchy was then ignorant that at day light, while he was moving from Gembloux, Blucher had detached from Wavres, Bulow's corps, which, about the time of G's army reaching Wavres, were appearing on the heights of St. Lambert, (3 leagues from Wavres) ready to fall upon Napoleon. And even had the Marshal been apprized of the movement, he could not have prevented it, or have reached Waterloo in time to have afforded aid to Napoleon, unless he could have given wings to his soldiers. It thus appears that the enemy in his retreat had the advance of Grouchy 17 hours—that between three o'clock, P. M. of the 17th, and two o'clock, P. M. of the 18th, he had marched ten leagues, through bad weather, and bad roads—and that when he reached Wavres, the decisive blow was striking at Waterloo—that he lost no time in his movements is evident; and if their direction was known and approved by Napoleon, the censures cast upon the military conduct of Grouchy are preposterous; that point is settled by the following expressions in the dispatch of Soult, chief of Napoleon's staff, dated from the field of battle, at one o'clock P. M. of the 18th of June.

"M. Le Marechal—You have written at 2 o'clock this morning to the emperor that you are marching upon Saravallian. This movement is in conformity to the dispositions of his majesty, which have been communicated to you."—Frank. Gaz.

BALTIMORE APRIL 26.

Funeral of Alexander C. Hanson.—The funeral of Alexander C. Hanson, was attended yesterday afternoon, at the place of his residence, about ten miles from this city, by a large number of his neighbors and a very respectable number of gentlemen from this city; by the late and present governor of the state of Maryland, one of the executive council, the attorney general, all the Judges of the courts of this district, and the chief justice of the city court of Baltimore.—The Right Rev. Dr. Kemp officiated, and delivered on the occasion, a very interesting and impressive address.

NEW YORK, APRIL 21.

William Teller, who, as published in our paper last summer, was imprisoned in Albany on the charge of having stolen a certain public record, and having placed in its room a forged record, was tried and convicted at the late court of oyer and terminer in that city, and sentenced to be confined in the state prison for life.—Com. Adv.

WASHINGTON, APRIL 23.

Capt. BIDDLE, of the Ontario Sloop of War, just arrived at Annapolis, from a two years' cruise round Cape Horn and in the South Sea, is at present in this city. It is hoped the public will be allowed to enjoy the benefits of his observations during his cruise; and that we shall have an account from him, or some other officer of the ship, of the many occurrences during the voyage, and whilst in South American ports, which are worthy of note. Such an account would excite an interest something allied to that which was generally produced by the first authentic accounts of Com. PORTER's gallant and adventurous cruise in the same seas.—Nat. Intel.

Capt. J. D. HENLEY, commanding the frigate Congress, now lying at Annapolis, and ready for a voyage even more extensive than that from which the Ontario has returned, has also been on a visit to this city. This vessel, it is said, will visit the East India ports; and it is believed will be the first national ship of the United States which has ever visited those ports. In her passage down the Atlantic coast, she will land at Rio Janeiro Mr. GRAHAM, our Minister to the Brazils. As soon as he is prepared to embark, the vessel will sail.—Id.

NEW YORK, APRIL 27.

Mr. POLETICA, Ambassador from Russia, arrived at this port last evening, in the ship Magnet, from Bordeaux.

A gentleman who arrived in town last yesterday, passenger in the Magnet, from Bordeaux, left Marseilles on the 10th March. The Erie sloop of war arrived there the same day, in six days from Messina, where she left the residue of the American squadron, all well. Mr. Shaler was to embark in the Erie for Messina. A schooner arrived from Philadelphia on the 8th, and another schooner was to sail for Philadelphia in a few days.—Nat. Int.

MONTREAL, APRIL 12.

A Duel was fought here yesterday morning, between Mr. O'Sullivan, attorney, and Dr. Caldwell; the former is supposed to be mortally wounded, the latter is also dreadfully wounded in the arm. It was occasioned by a piece which appeared in the last Confrat, written by the latter against the former, concerning the Montreal Hospital business—but you will soon learn, no doubt, all the particulars. False honor! dreadful intonation!

NEW PAPERS OF MERIT.

The St. Louis ENQUIRER is a paper which has been some time in existence at St. Louis; but it is of late only that it is known to be under the superintendence of Col. Th. H. Benton, an attorney of that place, formerly of Tennessee, who possesses highly respectable talents and acquirements. His paper may be ranked among the best in the western country, or indeed in any part of America. It is distinguished for editorial ability, sound politics, and an enlightened devotion to the interests of the western country.

The SOUTHERN PATRIOT, of Bowling Green, Ky. is a paper of recent date, and highly respectable pretensions. It appears to take a correct and enlightened course, and to maintain it with ability and firmness.

The GEORGIAN, published at Savannah, is a paper of modern date and very considerable merit. It is edited by Dr. John M. Harney, formerly of Bardonia, Ky. who has distinguished himself by his poetical writings, and particularly by his poem entitled "Christine."

The INDEPENDENT PRESS, published at Natchez, by P. Isler, Esq. is a new paper distinguished by its boldness and independence; it is also conducted with ability, and appears to deserve the patronage of the liberal of all parties.

SOMETHING NEW.

The merchants of this town have, within a few weeks past, been excessively annoyed by the seizures of their property to a large amount, by the surveyor of this port, acting, as he avers, under the special authority of the Secretary of the Treasury of the U. States. These instructions, (if any he may have received), he refuses to exhibit, which we conceive it his duty to do. The seizures that have been made, were on the property of some of our most respectable merchants, who would never be concerned in smuggling, nor would they wish to defraud the revenue of a solitary cent.

We are in hopes that this notice may find its way to the proper department, so that the remedy may be applied, by the dismission of the officer, and the protection of the property and the rights of our citizens, by a just construction and application of the revenue laws.

The building will hold an audience capable of yielding 6 or 700 dollars a night. LINES, Written during a morning excursion, on a distant view of "WALNUT GROVE," the residence of Mr. D. HALSTEAD, near Lexington.

Awake my Lyre! attune each string,
And notes of softest cadence sing:
For sweet 'Retirement' blest by love,
Where oft by Sol's declining ray,
From bus'ness free, I love to stray,
Among the tall embowring trees,
Way'd by the cooling evening breeze:
Where all the varied feather'd throng,
Melodious trill their notes of song,
'Till Cynthia, from the god of day,
Reflects her bright translucent ray:
And twilight's soft and balmy dews,
Their rich and fragrant sweets diffuse.
There, too, I've seen affection's pow'r
In friendship's sweet and social hour,
While youthful beauty's placid smile,
Would oft the cares of life beguile:
'Till the lone house clock's tinkling chime
Proclaim'd the lapse of fleeting time:
And bid those eyes, with pleasure bright,
Prepare to bid a kind good night.
And thus may friendship, virtue, love,
Forever dwell in "WALNUT GROVE."

KENTUCKY BARD.

They may rail at this life.

BY T. MOORE.
They may rail at this life—from the hour I began it
I've found it a life full of kindness and bliss;
And until they can show me some happier planet,
More social and bright, I'll content me with this.
As long as the world has such eloquent eyes,
As before me this moment enraptured I see,
They may say what they will of their orbs in the skies,
But this earth is the planet for you, love, & me.
In Mercury's star, where each moment can bring them
New sunshine and wit from the fountain on high,
Though the nymphs may have livelier poets to sing them,
They're none, even there, more enamour'd than I.
And, as long as this harp can be wakened to love,
And that eye its divine inspiration shall be,
They may talk as they will of their Edens above,
But this earth is the planet for you, love, & me.
In the star of the west, by whose shadowy splendor,
At twilight so often we're roam'd through the dew,
There are maidens, perhaps, who have bosoms as tender,
And look, in their twilights, as lovely as you;
But, though they were even more bright than the green
Of that isle they inhabit in the heaven-blue sea,
As I never these fair young celestials have seen,
Why—this earth is the planet for you, love, and me.
As for those chilly orbs on the verge of creation
Whose sunshine and smiles must be equally rare;
Did they want a supply of cold hearts for that station,
Heaven knows we have plenty on earth we could spare.
Oh! think what a world we should have of it here,
If the haters of peace, of affection and glee,
Were to fly to Saturn's cold comfortless sphere,
And leave earth to such spirits as you, love, and me.

ANECDOTE.—FACT.

A very genteel, impudent looking young man was seen to enter a church in time of service—he paused at the entrance—the congregation stared—he advanced a few steps, and deliberately surveying the whole assembly, commenced a slow march up the broad aisle—not a pew was opened—the audience were too busy for civility—he wheeled, and in the same manner performed a march, stepping, as it to Roslin Castle, or the dead march in Saul, and disappeared. A few moments after, he re-entered with a huge block upon his shoulders, as heavy as he could well stagger under—his countenance was immovable—again the good people stared, and half rose from their seats, with their books in their hands. At length, he placed the block in the very centre of the principal passage, and seated himself upon it. Then, for the first time, the reproach was felt. Every pew door in the house was instantly flung open! But no—the stranger was a gentleman—he came not there for disturbance—he moved not—smiled not; but preserved the utmost decorum, until the service was concluded, when he deliberately shouldered his block, and to the same slow step, bore it off, and replaced it where he had found it.

The congregation is now, the most polite and attentive to strangers, of any in America.—Balt. Tel.

Royal Munificence.—A gentleman in Massachusetts, lately sent King Henry, St. Domingo, one of Collin's elegant super royal quarto bibles. The present was gratefully received, and a few days after the gentleman received from the King a letter of thanks, enclosing a draft for six thousand dollars.

A Runaway in Jail.
WAS committed to my custody on the 19th inst. as a runaway, a NEGRO MAN called LEWIS, of the following description: he is near 30 years old, nice made, about 5 feet 10; his colour is that of a dark mulatto, round, full, smooth face, with whiskers, long broad, sharp nose, a lively eye and small eyebrows, low forehead and short negro hair, has an agreeable voice, speaks quick, and intelligent; has a brown surtout, grey lincey coat and overalls, one black satten and two striped swandown vests, a white fur hat, and good shoes, and is a shoe-maker.
He says that he belongs to the estate of David Bates, dec'd. in Davidson county, Tennessee; that he was hired to Robert Johnston, about five miles south from Nashville, from whom he ran away on the 14th inst. with a white man by the name of Robert Black, (with whom he was apprehended in Lexington.) The Negro claims two Mares of the following description: one is a BAY, 14 hands high, 4 years old, a white curl on each fore leg, shod before; the other a SOLE-RED, 9 or 10 years old, same height of the bay, with a star and some white specks in her face and on her near jaw, no shoes on; they are at Keen's stable. A letter has been directed to Mr. Johnston, but the uncertainty of the Negro's statements, renders this advertisement necessary.

McQuie's Tobacco.
HAVING been fully apprised that Tobacco of very inferior quality, not manufactured by us, has frequently been sold under our name, thereby tending to the injury of the reputation of our own manufacture—We, therefore, in justice to ourselves, hereby make it known that we have resolved effectually to warrant the quality of all the manufactured Tobacco which we put into market; and as we do positively hold ourselves responsible for the quality of our Tobacco, we shall, of course, have none sold (if we regard our interest) which is not good—as we trust, that from a fair and candid comparison, it will be found equal, if not superior, to any manufactured in the United States.
